“Casual Friday” Commentary

Casual Friday: Recession Chatter? + What's YOUR Story? – May 19th, 2023

Happy Friday – spring is in full bloom in northeast!

Financial news is usually dominated by earnings and how they relate to recessionary forces – especially now.

What do our company results say about the economy? What are CEO's saying?

On average, most of our companies delivered positive earnings or sales surprises. We're pleased.

Financials: generally navigating the environment reasonably well – we own very large regionals (PNC, MTB) or megabanks (JPM, BAC). But the stocks are still down and this has been a drag on performance YTD.

Industrial oriented companies: demand still remains pretty brisk for many. Let's hope they are saying the same 2 quarters from now.

Consumer & drug companies: less cyclical companies, a potential haven also posted solid results.

Telecom: our lone holding posted a big miss on slower subscriber growth.

Net / Net? Company earnings across a range of industries are still holding up, despite constant recession chatter.

34 of 36 Berkshire companies reported as of 5.18.2023

What's YOUR Story?

"Story" in investment manager parlance usually means a pitch, that highlights the 6 P's: Product, People, Philosophy, Process, Portfolio, Performance. It's a traditional institutional construct...

Consultant: "No one can tell the Berkshire story better than their principals" I heard this comment at a recent meeting and I took a long pause. I thought "You know, our whole approach with advisors has little to do with OUR story. Our approach always focuses on hearing the ADVISOR'S story. What are you trying to accomplish in your practice? What challenges are you facing? How do you differentiate yourself?"

It seems consultative one on one selling is a superior approach, but I think many managers are so excited to impress advisors with how smart the team is, how wonderful the process is, and how great the alpha is, they missed the mark... And guess what? Most teams and strategies ARE super impressive and solve a host of problems, which is how they got on your platform in the first place.

Confession – I may occasionally derive some relatively mindless entertainment from social media. I mean, the other day I watched a house cat beat up a fox (Pure gold!). But in another video, I also watched a communications expert say "Don't talk to impress. Ask questions and listen so you can understand. That actually will impress someone."

She's spot on. Berkshire's take? Instead of droning on and on about the product, We start by asking advisors: Where do you want to take your practice? What type of clients do you want to have? How do you want to be known? How do you want to differentiate...and a host more. Importantly we ask you to imagine your practice at the ultimate height of success...and describe what that looks and feels like. Then a true partner (not the kind that just gives lip service) should commit to taking steps to make it easier, more efficient, and more enjoyable (even fun?) to become all that you want to be. That's how we define success. The product solutions will likely take care of itself.

That's where we start.

So, forget "our story" for the moment tell us..."what's YOUR story"

Berkshire Asset Management, LLC claims compliance with the Global Investment Performance Standards (GIPS®). Berkshire Asset Management is a fee-based, SEC registered advisory firm serving the portfolio management needs of institutional and high-net worth clients. The Dividend Growth Composite contains portfolios invested in Berkshire's Dividend Growth Strategy with an equity allocation target of 90% - 100%. The Dividend Growth Strategy's primary objective is to generate a growing stream of equity income by investing in a diversified portfolio of equities with stable, high, and growing dividends. The benchmark is the S&P 500 Index. The index returns are provided to represent the investment environment existing during the time periods shown. For comparison purposes, the index is fully invested, does not include any trading costs, management fees, or other costs, and the reinvestment of dividends and other distributions is assumed. An investor cannot invest directly in an index. Gross returns are presented before management and other fees but after all trading expenses. Net returns are calculated by deducting actual management fees from gross returns. Returns reflect the reinvestment of dividends and other earnings. Valuations are computed and performance is reported in U.S. dollars. Definitions: The S & P 500 Index is a market capitalization weighted index of the largest 500 U.S. stocks. It is a market-value weighted index (stock price times # of shares outstanding), with each stock's weight in the index proportionate to its market value. The index is designed to measure changes in the economy and is representative of most major industries. Russell 1000 Growth Index measures the performance of those Russell 1000 companies with higher price-to-book ratios and higher forecasted growth values. The index was developed with a base value of 200 as of August 31, 1992. Russell 1000 Value Index measures the performance of those Russell 1000 companies with lower price-to-book ratios and lower forecasted growth values. The index was developed with a base value of 200 as of August 31, 1992. You cannot invest directly in an index. BEst (Bloomberg Estimates) Earnings Per Share (EPS Adjusted) estimate returns Earnings Per Share from Continuing Operations, which may exclude the effects of one-time and extraordinary gains/losses. Beta is a measure of volatility vs. an index. Upside/Downside capture ratios refer to a portfolios performance as a percentage of either positive returns (upside) or negative returns (downside) vs. an index. Standard Deviation is a measure of total risk. Alpha, Beta and capture ratios are represented as calculated by Morningstar.

Risks: Past performance does not guarantee future results. Different types of investments involve varying degrees of risk, and there can be no assurance that any specific investment will either be suitable or profitable for an individual's investment portfolio. Dividends are subject to change, are not guaranteed, and may be cut. Investing based on dividends alone may not be favorable as it does not include all material risks. There is no guarantee any stated (or implied) portfolio or performance objective mentioned by Berkshire can be met. Berkshire's equity style may focus its investments in certain sectors or industries, thereby increasing potential volatility relative to other strategies or indices. The dividend strategy may include bundled services also known as a "wrap fee program". Because there is typically a low turnover in the strategy, this may be more costly for some investors.
